About 6 to 8 weeks after surgery, when wounds have healed, supportive products like silicone breast forms & shapers can begin to give you your confidence back. Your first breast form should be fitted at a local medical supply store or bra boutique. Amoena's innovative breast care designs offer features for every unique need, including a fully custom-made breast form using 3D scanning technology.

Breast shapers can provide symmetry after breast-conserving surgery, breast reconstruction, multiple biopsies, or in the case of natural asymmetry.

After breast surgery, the bra is more than just an undergarment – it becomes an active part of your personal health care. It's important that you feel comfortable in your clothes for continued recovery and well-being. These bras are designed specifically for your needs, unlike conventional bras. They're more comfortable and ensure that the prosthesis stays securely in place.

For a wonderful day at the beach or in the pool, our pocketed swimwear combines high-tech fabrics with contemporary designs and innovative style details.

 Amoena Recovery Care is specially designed to support the healing process after surgery. Postoperative recovery presents many challenges, which can create additional hurdles to overcome. Our products support you while you heal from surgical procedures, including full and partial surgeries, as well as breast reconstruction.

 Amoena's Lymph Care Concept is ideal for patients after breast cancer surgery with mild lymphatic disease in the thoracic/ chest area. The CuraLymph Comfort and CuraLymph Compression products, developed with medical professionals, are designed to encourage lymphatic drainage, with appropriate compression.

When combined with Adapt Air breast forms and shapers, as well as other Lingerie & Swimwear products, these product solutions complement each other perfectly and provide holistic care.
